Marton Mills Co Ltd (established 1931) is a traditional, family-owned and managed textile mill steeped in heritage and driven by innovative design.

Nestled in the heart of Wharfedale, West Yorkshire, Marton Mills produces premium fabrics for a variety of end uses.

We offer creative solutions underpinned by traditional Yorkshire values, where consistent quality and exemplary service are provided as standard.

Marton Mills has been weaving fabric for ceremonial military uniforms for many decades.

We are honoured to be supplying the highest quality fabrics to the most prestigious military tailors in the UK and overseas.

Our mission is to ensure those serving their country can wear their uniform with pride.

We have the ability to weave a wide range of fabric qualities including meltons, baratheas and worsted cloths.

With our experienced in-house design department, fabrics can be created to your exact requirements and specification.

Our fabric is manufactured in-house by a highly skilled workforce. From warping through to twisting, weaving, and mending, our production processes are carried out with the utmost precision and care.

To ensure we produce high-quality products, we are constantly investing in state-of-the-art technology, recently purchasing new Picanol looms. This has significantly increased production capacity, enabling us to expand product ranges and flexibility while delivering further efficiencies.

Through shared ownership, we work closely with Roberts Dyers and Finishers in nearby Keighley, ensuring that our high standards are maintained throughout the entire production process. Finishes, such as a simple Fluorocarbon coating, a flame retardant finish, or the latest Nanosphere® technology, can be applied to meet your product's end-use specifications.

All of our fabrics are inspected by our in-house quality control department to ensure technical specifications are met.

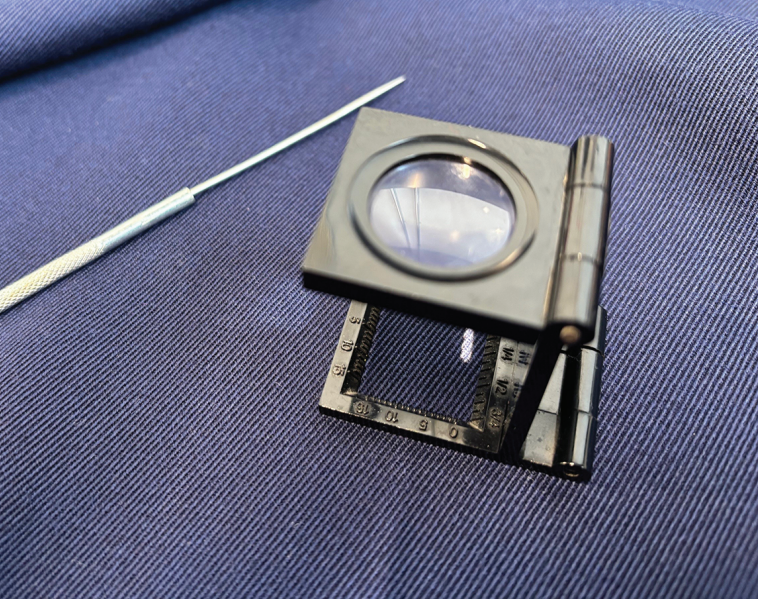

Marton Mills is BSI certified for the quality management system ISO 9001:2015, with independent biannual inspections to ensure we continue to maintain this standard.

Fabrics required to meet technical specifications are tested externally at an independent UKAS-certified testing house to ensure impartiality and accuracy.

It was an honour to welcome Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal to Marton Mills for a tour of our production facilities.

As President of UKFT (UK Fashion and Textile Association) and also in her role of Admiral as Chief Commandant for Women in the Royal Navy it was a pleasure to be able to show HRH The Princess Royal the range of military fabric produced at our mill in Yorkshire.

One of the highlights of the visit was the presentation of a Service to Industry Award to our Chairman, Duncan Watts, who has been working in the British textile industry for over 50 years. This award serves as a testament to our deep-rooted commitment to all our employees here at Marton Mills and the contribution they have brought to our company's success over the years.
