We go the extra mile

We are proud to be listed as a prime Contractor for the US military that we regularly tender for. Ucargo also works with several OEM's on supplying for Military Contracts.

We have spent time growing and building contacts across 25 years to solidify the relevant relationships needed, including our trusted suppliers and knowledgeable team to get to this point, but we have worked hard to boast these solid links within the defence industry.

For our Government and Defence contracts our professional team are well equipped and dedicated to meet the operational needs used to work with government and defence clients – Adept at working within the strict timelines and guides set out in defence contracts.

Overseeing each element of our projects is important to us and what sets us apart from other freight forwarding agencies. Each moving part is monitored and managed, and UCARGO will always have a personal involvement to make sure client and supplier is briefed and knows what is going on - and we are there right away to handle and solve any problems that may arise. We will always fly to ports, docks and bases (wherever we are required) to personally oversee loading and unloading for the specific and complex equipment involved with military and defence cargo.

We have a wealth of knowledge with US Flag vessels and carriers as well as experience in vessel and aircraft chartering plus excellent links with specific container requirements and need.

Ship & Airline Chartering

Our experience working with the US Military has afforded us the experience to charter vessels and aircraft where necessary. It is often used when needing to transport huge quantities or equipment that is unable to travel with anything else.

The team has experience working with vessel owners to negotiate deals on chartering and securing ocean transit and will advise whether it is the right way to ship your cargo or if there are alternatives that could be better value.

Also having experience working with airlines to charter planes to move equipment in the fastest possible time has given our operations team the knowledge to work on this if required for your project.

Pago Pago

Pago Pago is a small island near Australia. Due to its remote location became a tricky job that needed to be handled on-site.

A successful bid via the US Military site led to being awarded this project.

The cargo (Generators) were located on Pago Pago and needed to return back to the US Military in Hawaii. Tony flew to Pago Pago and worked with the clients to work on the tricky schedule to get the generators from Pago Pago to Los Angeles via sea freight and then onward to Hawaii.

Alaska

The bid came through late on Friday and it was a quick turnaround to apply for the job on the US Military tender system and we were awarded it by the Monday. A last minute job that due to our knowledge was done quickly with precision.

The project involved chartering a US Flag vessel to move three large boats from Seattle to Alaska. Our contacts enabled UCARGO to work with a US Flag owner and work on this project with no complications.

Djibouti

All hands on deck for Djibouti...

The job came in on a Wednesday and after applying to tender through the US Military bid site we are awarded the job by Friday.

The team worked through the weekend for this project, but it became clear that a person on the ground was needed. Tony flew to Djibouti on Sunday. Where he worked directly with the carrier in their offices to ensure the bookings went without hitch. Using the power of in-person persuasion to make sure 10 flat racks of equipment from Djibouti were booked on the ship to return to Somalia. Delivery was arranged with a full armed guard which added another element to our forwarding abilities.

Our proactive and reactionary approach got this job done.
