Peli Products (UK) UDT 2026

Displayed on Stand E82, the Peli™ case range is ideal for protecting all types of defence equipment. With US NATO stock numbers, many models are also Defstan 81-41 certified. These cases undergo rigorous testing, including drop, vibration, and water immersion tests, ensuring they meet the demanding standards required for military use.

Peli cases are the market leaders in equipment protection and are designed to withstand extreme conditions, offering unparalleled durability and security. The materials used, such as Peli's proprietary HPX™ resin, provide superior strength while being lightweight. They are watertight, dustproof and crushproof, essential features in ensuring that sensitive and vital equipment remains functional in the most challenging conditions.

Offering significant long-term cost benefits, the superior durability of Peli cases means they can withstand multiple deployments, reducing the need for frequent replacements. Additionally, the protection they offer to valuable equipment prevents costly damage and ensures the readiness of these items when they are needed most.

Military Packaging Accreditation Scheme

Peli UK offer a full customisation service, with in-house military packaging design capability from MSA Foams Ltd, an MPAS registered company. Bespoke military level packaging is designed to Defstan 81-41, with close MOD liaison by MPAS approved designers. Custom foam inserts are highly durable and are tailored specifically for equipment, such as weapons and ancillary items, for maximum protection.

Protective packaging ensures the equipment arrives safely in theatre and is fully operational.

CAD is used to ensure space is optimised, often amalgamating items into one case that were previously in several different storage systems. Reducing the size or quantity of the case(s) also reduces logistics costs. The bespoke insert holds the contents securely while specialised foams minimise the risk of damage during transit.

Precision engineered foam inserts have been produced for several rifles including the SA80 and the L119 A2 rifle. The bespoke foam insert is designed fit inside the Peli 1700 Protector case and includes pockets designed for ammunition and ancillary items.

Peli Products (UK) offer a wide range of case sizes to suit all requirements with OD Green and Desert Tan colour options on many models. There are three ranges: the Peli Protector range, the Peli storm series and the lighter weight Peli Air range.

Peli™ Air Cases

The Peli™ Air Case range has been expanded with the addition of new deeper and longer cases. Peli Air cases are waterproof and crushproof and offer additional sizes to the Peli Protector and Peli Storm case lines.

Air cases are designed to maintain the same level of durability as the classic Peli cases, the Air models' weight has been reduced by up to 40 percent. The range is constructed of premium lightweight HPX2 resin and includes the 1755 long case. Peli Air cases are now manufactured with press and pull latches to make opening easy but ensuring the case is securely fastened when closed.

The Peli Hardigg range includes Mobile Medical Chests, Footlockers and Rack cases, providing reliable protection for all types of medical and personal kit as well as IT hardware. These rotomoulded cases are designed to the highest standards to keep sensitive and vital military equipment safe and fully operational.

Peli rackmount cases are constructed with rugged materials to withstand extreme conditions, including impact, vibration, and harsh weather.

Featuring shock-absorbing mounts and customisable interiors, Peli rack cases ensure that delicate electronic gear and mission-critical instruments remain secure and operational during transport and deployment. Their versatility and durability make them an essential component in military logistics, providing peace of mind that vital equipment is safeguarded against damage in the most challenging scenarios. When it comes to electronics, nothing protects better than Peli.

Peli Products (UK) Ltd is a JOSCAR registered company with ISO certification, ensuring quality systems and has been an ADS member for many years.
